Professional Leadership Training

This training is for sexological and theological professionals that have completed at least one year of study in their respective disciplines.

Priority is given to those who identify as Christian or whose professional sexual health work includes a significant proportion of those impacted by Christianity. This program meets the requirements for the American Association of Sexuality Educators, Counselors and Therapists (AASECT) and is approved for 20 CE credits upon receipt of participants' evaluations. Completion of this program does not ensure or guarantee AASECT Certification. For further information please contact: ce@aasect.org.

Application must include a $50 deposit, which will go toward registration if you are selected. If you are not selected as a participant, the fee will be refunded.

Note that the IISF Leadership Training is professional in nature, yet engages participants on a personal level as well. We believe one can be most effective when one has examined issues of sexuality, faith, and intersectionality on a personal level, which includes attending to the healing of one's own sexual and/or religious wounding. IISF is committed to Healing Centered Engagement, which is an approach that acknowledges the trauma of the lived experiences of participants, while calling them to engage in the process of healing, which means moving from brokenness to wholeness. We believe that as sexual and spiritual people we are impacted by interlocking systems of oppression that affect our understanding of who we are mind, body and spirit. Therefore we acknowledge the dynamic interplay of awareness and action, hurt and transformation, justice and reclamation within our relationships to the people, places and communities we care deeply about. A healing centered approach allows us to name our injuries while doing the work of becoming trained sex and faith educators.
